the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems in the community. The Department of Health (1999) has set out a vision for the future of mental health services, which includes a focus on preventing mental health problems, supporting people with mental health problems in the community, and providing specialist services for people with severe mental health problems. The vision is based on the principles of recovery, which is a process of personal growth and development that leads to a better quality of life for people with mental health problems. Recovery is a personal journey, and it is important to support people in their recovery process.

One of the key challenges in supporting people with mental health problems in the community is the need for a coordinated approach. This involves working together across different sectors, including health, social care, and housing, to provide a comprehensive range of services. The Department of Health (1999) has identified the need for a 'joined-up' approach to mental health services, which involves working together to share resources and expertise.

One of the ways in which a coordinated approach can be achieved is through the use of multi-agency teams. These teams bring together professionals from different sectors, such as health, social care, and housing, to work together to support people with mental health problems. Multi-agency teams can provide a more holistic approach to care, taking into account the needs of the whole person, rather than just focusing on their mental health problem.

Another way in which a coordinated approach can be achieved is through the use of shared care arrangements. These arrangements involve sharing responsibility for a person's care between different professionals, such as a GP and a mental health nurse. Shared care arrangements can help to ensure that a person's care is coordinated and consistent, and they can also help to reduce the risk of duplication of services.

There are a number of factors that can influence the success of a coordinated approach to mental health services. These include the availability of resources, the willingness of professionals to work together, and the needs of the people being served. It is important to consider these factors when developing a coordinated approach to mental health services, and to ensure that it is tailored to the needs of the local population.

In conclusion, the need for a coordinated approach to mental health services is growing. This approach involves working together across different sectors to provide a comprehensive range of services that support people with mental health problems in the community. Multi-agency teams and shared care arrangements are two ways in which a coordinated approach can be achieved.

Things to see . . . things to do . . . the eternal quest of the American teenager, Morton attempts to come to the aid of the bored, "nothin' to do" student. Classes have been updated and new ones added. Single Survival — guys learning the basics of sewing and cooking — and a sophomore speed reading course are new and offered this year.

What classes Morton doesn't offer, other area schools provide.

While nearly half the students eat lunch in the cafeteria, the rest either go home or to restaurants. Students patronize area eating spots and account for a big part of their success.

With today's inflation, bikes are one answer to physical and financial fitness. Frosh Ellen Hojnacki finds its size convenient for getting closer to nature.

Swift easy strokes enable a swimmer to glide through the water. Competition in swimming classes can be a help or hindrance.

Students may attend classes at Tech, a basically vocational school, or enroll for courses offered at I.U. Northwest or Purdue Calumet.

Athletically minded? There exists a variety of sports to observe or participate in. From cross-country starting late in the summer to baseball season ending in mid-June, sport enthusiasts can plot the progression of the year by what sport is in season.

"You can't please all the people all the time." And so it goes at Morton as elsewhere. Ten percent of the students ditch at least one class per day. Surprisingly, the number is down from last year. This is attributed to the fact that a social worker and her para-professional have joined the staff.

Life goes on for students after the dismissal bell rings. Their hours after school are filled with furthering their interests and going out with friends. While one student finds peace of mind through Transcendental Meditation, another is turning back to established, traditional religion.

For some, weekends begin with support of the varsity football or basketball team, depending on the season, every Friday night. Others simply go out with their friends and party. Most, though, find Monday coming around too soon.

If you're skeptical about all this and wondering what makes Morton what it is, come inside and see for yourself.

Students empty out of rooms and pour into the halls at the end of an hour. While one student is through for the day, another must go to his locker and next class within five minutes.

From the sidelines Lester Kerr and Coach Nick Luketic watch the team. Often mistakes are found quicker while looking from off the field.

Community involvement supplied the ingredient needed to make The Little Red Schoolhouse dedication ceremonies successful. Two Morton students catch wind of bicentennial spirit.

Leaving the city behind, Mr. Bill Farris and Hiking Club members Joan Skager, Patty Thomas and Mike Stanny get a bird's eye view from on top of a hill in Michigan.

Money

"Without it there's not much you can really do."

Remember when penny candy cost a penny and jeans were cheaper than dress pants? It seems a long time ago, but it was only a few years back. Could the free enterprise our economy has been based on for 200 years be doing more harm than good for the average American?

Today's inflation has skyrocketed prices. Households are sticking to stricter budgets to help make ends meet.

Teenagers haven't escaped inflation. A survey conducted by "Who's Who Among American High School Students" this past year found students placing the country's economic crisis top on their list of national concerns.

To get an idea of what attitudes Morton students have concerning inflation and related matters, a random sampling of 100 students was conducted.

Today, money isn't buying the quantity and quality it had in the past. The question was posed:

With today's inflation have you found yourself,

A. Spending money at the same rate as before;

B. Thinking over twice whether something is worth spending your money for the high cost.

While 26% chose A, a 74% majority chose B. Most agreed they had to learn to budget their money better. Within a week a teenager can easily spend around $15. Among other things, it's spent on movies, food and on gas to get to the places to spend the rest of the money. Not included in this are the more "luxurious" items bought. Concert tickets run from $4 up to $10. The prices of albums and clothes also must be taken into account.

And where does the money come from that's spent? 31% of those questioned said they had jobs, working 27 hours a week on the average. Those that don't have jobs receive allowances from their parents or borrow from friends.

Americans are generally looked upon as being more materialistic than the rest of the world. Money has become a simple criterion on which people judge each other. Statistics show more than half of all Americans own their own homes. An average of two cars is owned by each family. Every other home has a color television. How materialistic are Morton students? They were asked:

If you had a choice of doing only A or B after graduating from high school which would you choose?

A. Go to college to pursue the education and career you want;

B. Find a job that would assure you of financial success.

44% of those asked chose A and the other 56% chose B. A difference of 10% indicated that more were interested in a future with assurance of wealth.

However, when asked what attitudes reflected their concepts of money, the results were: "Money brings respect, friends and conquest" — 12%; "A heavy purse makes a light heart" — 18%; "Being poor is a frame of mind" — 34%; "Love of money is the root of all evil!" — 35%. The majority paired their attitudes up with those that didn't condone money as being morally necessary.

One student summed up the general consensus regarding money: "Without it, there's not much you can really do."

It's a tough decision to find which album is the best to buy. Junior Dave Peters knows he can't afford to buy as many as he wants.

Sophomore Kathy Krist makes sure the tomato plants get proper care. Home gardening has been taken up by many to make ends meet.

At a quarter a game, the new pinball craze can eat holes through wallets. Senior Michele Pearson plays "just one more" game.

Institutors live in dorms, get taste of college life

"Maybe I need another suitcase . . . wonder if I've packed everything" — typical comments made by someone preparing to travel. This summer similar decisions faced many students.

Twirlers learned new techniques while they were at a camp in Syracuse. Cheerleaders spent a week at Lakeland College, Wisconsin where they received several first place awards.

Indiana University hosted a journalism institute. Mortonite editors, Joe Farmer and Mary Fowler won second place awards for assignments done in workshops.

Girls and Boys State representatives built a government through elections. Lester Kerr was elected county coroner; Fernando Vela, county surveyor; Carol Lovin, vice-city chairman; Julie Marlow, city chairman.

For two months Joe Greer stayed at Indiana University studying microbiology. There, he isolated a bacteria only isolated eight other times.

Mike Mayer attended a two week drama institute at the University of Evansville.

Forensic Institute — Don Johnson and Marshall Greene stayed at Miami University, Ohio for two weeks and improved their debating skills.

Leadership Institute — Association officers Cathy Riskin, Mike Maloney and Larry Sknerski spent two weeks during the summer finding solutions to school problems.

Twirling Institute, Drum Major Institute — Deanna Huber, Cheryl Pauer, Lynn Carmon, Kathy Nowak, Dave Teran.

Journalism Institutes — sitting: Debbie Novak; standing: Judy Chovanec, Mary Fowler, Randi Hickman, Beth Hess, Sue Plinter; top: Joe Farmer, Joani Reischel.

This year's theme for the band's halftime music was "Love." Senior Pom-Pom girl Vickie Ford does a routine set to the band's music.

Mary Fowler was crowned the 1975 Homecoming Queen during halftime ceremonies. She was picked from an original number of eighteen.

Daily events build spirit

"What we need is a change." Guided by this, Homecoming turned out to be an event involving more people than in prior years.

Held out on the football field, this year's homecoming assembly included a choreographed number by the Mixed Ensemble and a skit by several senior guys jokingly mocking homecoming candidates.

An element of surprise was added to the announcement of the six queen candidates during the assembly. All 18 of the nominated senior girls were escorted onto the field, after which the six finalists were announced.

Throughout the entire week, spirit rose to an unexpectedly high level. For each day an activity was sponsored by a club. "50's Day" started off the week with students donning D.A.'s and bobby socks. As the week progressed, even faculty members joined in the pre-Homecoming events. The game and the crowning of the queen highlighted the week.

Candy sales, car washes, button sales — what's the reason for them? Since their freshman year, juniors used these and other fund raising projects so they could afford to put on the prom.

May 17 was set as the prom date. Scherwood Club hosted the prom in Schererville. To save on money, after-prom was held at the same place.

Girls took in numerous stores before finding a dress. Guys rented tuxedos. For some males it was one of the few times they didn't wear jeans.

Imperial Paradise

Oriental flair guides Winter semi-formal theme

With the past year's fashions leaning toward an Oriental look, the theme chosen for the year's annual Winter Semi-Formal was "Imperial Paradise."

Set for the evening of December 6, Association members found they didn't have as much time for preparation as they thought. The week prior to the event, students diligently worked to have everything ready in time.

"Once we had the theme, it still took us a while to figure out specifically what decorations we were going to have," remarked JoAnn Ardelean chairman of the decorating committee.

However, the dance was successful. Decorations had transformed the cafeteria and commons into an Oriental garden. The hallways leading into both the cafeteria and commons area were lined with murals depicting Chinese scenes. Refreshments were served in the commons from a bamboo hut, representing a worshipping area. Fortune cookies were among the many things couples could choose to eat.

Couples danced to the music of 'Justice' from 8 to 11 p.m. Girls left their bouquets at the tables when they went to dance, while others wore wrist corsages or corsages pinned to their dresses.

After the dance couples went to restaurants where they had made reservations. It wasn't unusual to see a table reserved for eight as friends went to the same place.

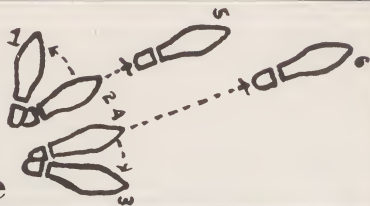

The added space from the commons provides extra room to seat the 165 couples attending. The cafeteria serves for dancing.

Television networks found coping with the "family hour" regulations a hassle. Shows between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. had to be suitable for the entire family's viewing.

ABC made Irwin Shaw's "Rich Man, Poor Man" into a mini-series for television.

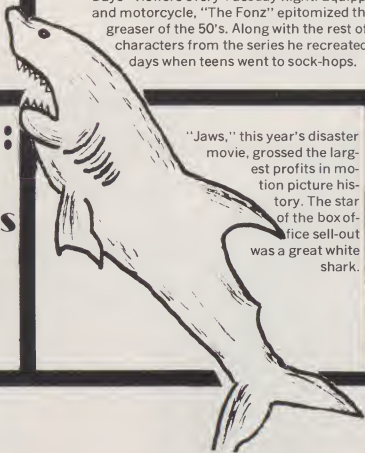

It was presented in one hour programs on Monday nights.

HESSVILLE HERITAGE

"If people were satisfied they would have stayed behind the Appalachians."

If people were satisfied they would have stayed behind the Appalachians."

This is one man's explanation for the settling of people in this area. Mr. V.E. Iliif is a 78 year resident of Hammond. Though he wasn't around during the "early years" of Hessville's development, as a young man he talked with the older residents who remembered the way things were prior to the turn of the century.

Place yourself back to the year of 1890. If you were to walk to school on the routine path that you drive today, you'd find yourself at the site of a black powder plant. At that time, black powder was the only explosive usable in guns. Powder from this plant went to supply American forces during the Spanish-American War.

Sometime around 1898 a big explosion occurred at the plant. A man was killed and what remained of the building was left abandoned. Eventually, scrap was made of the metal remnants and foilage grew over the area.

Mr. V.E. Iliif, responsible for saving the schoolhouse, travels there daily to raise the flag and care for the maintenance.

Hessville youth get into the spirit by riding in the Fourth of July parade. The parade traveled down Kennedy Avenue to 173rd Street.

Eighteen-seventy, the first election year in the area, brought people from the entire township to Hammond to vote. That year 206 out of 286 potential voters cast their ballots. During this time, voters from as far as Hobart, Portage and Chesterton could vote only in Hammond. The men had no roads to use. They followed sandridges and it usually took a full day's journey to get here. Those that voted had to remain until the votes were counted, which was usually the next day.

Hessville's namesake is Mr. Hess, the first North Township trustee. Mr. Hess came to the area in 1849. His first act as township trustee was to build the Little Red Schoolhouse. Prior to this time, an oak log school building (14ft X 16ft) was situated in Hessville. A teacher from a school in present-day downtown Hammond came two days out of the week to teach.

The Little Red Schoolhouse was the first permanent brick building in North Township. It served as a school until 1898 when it was closed due to inadequate space. After it was closed, the schoolhouse was used to hold public meetings and dances. Supposedly, it also housed the headquarters for William J. Bryan's first presidential campaign.

Ninety years ago 6915 Grand housed a powder factory

OUR BICENTENNIAL

After its move to Hessville Park and major uplift, observers are welcome to visit the Little Red Schoolhouse or hold public meetings.

Schoolhouse Dedication Kicks-Off Bicentennial

Portraying militiamen in the Revolutionary War, Hammond residents act out their part in the Bicentennial parade.

Where the Kennedy Avenue Post Office is located today, a two-room schoolhouse was built in 1899. Later on, two more rooms were added on to provide more space.

There's truth to the stories heard about boys dunking girl's braids into inkwells. The usual form of any punishment was to stand in the corner of the room. It was rare when a student received a beating with a rubber hose. When assignments weren't finished, students had to remain after school until they completed them.

Truancy wasn't a real problem. Most students were from farm families; therefore during the fall and early spring most didn't attend because they had to help with the fields.

It's hard to picture Kennedy Avenue lined on both sides by free growing oak trees. Early residents made their income by selling berries and by growing grains. Fish, ducks and other game flourished in the clean lakes and were also sold.

Vigilantes tried to keep things under control. The only police protection was the sheriff of Crown Point. By the time he made it out to Hessville, it was usually too late. Gamblers would often come out to the fields from Chicago and have rooster fights.

Until around 1913, people lived simple rural lives. The population had stabilized at approximately 125.

Then from 1913 on, Hessville began to grow. Railroads were constructed; men came with them. Factories followed the railroads and brought more people. The railroads cut down the big oak trees for fuel. People came to Hessville from as far as East Hammond to cut down the young oaks for firewood.

A minority of residents saw their wildlife diminishing and made futile efforts to save what remained. The Briar East area was some of the last natural acreage left and was owned by the Nichol Plate Railroad Company. When the conservationists were bidding for the land, they were outbid by land developers.

Mr. Iliff summarizes America's 200 years by saying it was:
"Conceived in Discontent;
Born in Revolution;
Nurtured on Dissatisfaction"

Recognition

Students prove ability, receive top honors

Few people are born with traits or talents that make them excel in certain areas. Most develop them. Determination to play a game gets the bench warmer through the season. Determination to play an instrument better than average plants the seed for tomorrow's musicians.

This year's Hammond Junior Miss was Beverly Wolan. Besides receiving this title, she won first place in both the Creative and Performing Arts division and in the Poise and Appearance division.

The 1975 Lake Shore Conference All-Star Football Squad included Morton players, Tim Costa, Dennis Domsic, Lester Kerr, John Muta, and Joe Miecznikowski.

Pressure for equality between the sexes brought an end to a DAR tradition. Starting this year boys were eligible to receive the award.

Many hours of practice attained for Dale Young a position in the All State Band. Dale is an accomplished musician playing several instruments.

Beverly Wolan was named Hammond Junior Miss after winning the contest sponsored by the Hammond Jaycees. She received $300 in prize money.

DAR recipient Julie Marlow took a three hour competitive exam to advance to a county level. The faculty chose her from 35 nominees.

Joe Miecznikowski became a member of the 1975 All State Football Team. For the past two years, he's been on the Conference All Star Squad.

Skill, performance and sportsmanship helped Tim Costa, Mr. Football; Janet Goginsky, Ms. Basketball; and Steve Vermejan, Mr. Basketball win their titles.

A decision to finish high school brought Barbara Kender more rewards than she expected. She received the Betty Crocker Award.

Diane Brnicky received the honor of singing in this year's All State choir. This marked the first time a Morton student entered the contest.

Androcles (Jeff Spotten) helps Isabella (Debby Zaher) escape from her guardian. By helping Isabella escape, he becomes a run-away slave.

Chivalry sends Matt (Tim Guldén) into a confrontation with the bandit, El Gallo (Mark Scott) who plans to kidnap Louisa in, "The Fantasticks."

Clutching her rag doll, Gretel (Shirley Thomas) listens to her father (Mike Mayer) advising her never to wander into the forest.

During the musical, "The Fantasticks," Mortimer (Lester Kerr) helps Hency (Ray Sumner) gather enough courage together to ask El Gallo for a job.

Season openers: 'Androcles, and the Lion;' 'Our Town'

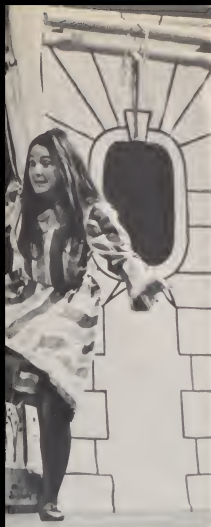

The lights dim and the curtain goes up. The first move onstage or downstage sets off the flow of events to follow. Aided by the right scenery and lighting, actors proceed in getting the audience to sympathize with the lovers destined never to find happiness or show them the lighter side of life as seen through the eyes of a talking lion.

Morton's Top Hat Theatre presented "Androcles and the Lion" during October. Androcles, a slave, helps to bring his master's ward and her lover together. He finds the true meaning of friendship after risking his life for the lovers and in turn having a lion save his life.

Possibly, the character with the most lines in any one play is the stage manager in "Our Town." He unfolds the lives of the boy next door and of the family down the block. Thornton Wilder's Grover's Corners sets the scene for the basic problems that confront everyone.

"A chorus that doesn't sing? You're kidding." That was the reaction of most when tryouts were announced for the play, "Hansel and Gretel." The chorus provided narration and movement for the play.

"The Fantasticks," this year's spring musical dealt with the problem of meddling parents. Two parents try everything to get their children to marry each other.

With more than his share of problems, Pantalone (Mike Mayer) is determined to get back his ward, Louisa, her inheritance and his slave, Androcles.

A tear of joy falls from Mrs. Soames' (Doreen Mish) eye during the wedding in "Our Town." Simple props accented the town's rural ways.

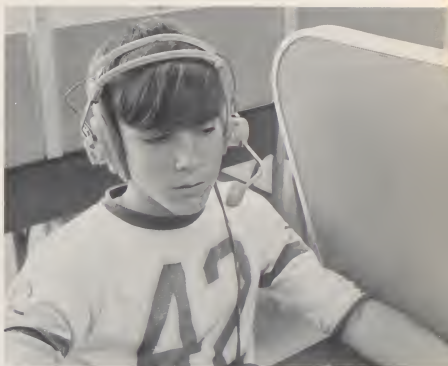

Learning

What can over two thousand students have in common? Aside from all being teen-agers, they all attend Morton. Whether they do so willfully or not, most go to classes daily.

Many find the electives easier to bare than the required courses. Realizing this, the administration tried to diversify and add to the number of classes offered. New ways of approaching dry English classes have appeared. For those who find advanced math unnecessary but are interested in science, practical chemistry and physics are available.

An open mind and a closer look at the courses offered can even help the student finding school a waste of time to find something worthwhile.

Lab assistant Diane Dzurochak leans across a sink to clean the fish tank. Proper maintenance of the equipment found in the science department extends its durability.

During electronics class, Steve Pruitt uses a soldering gun to divide up the piece of cork. The heat it generates breaks apart the parts of cork. Basics are taught before students advance.

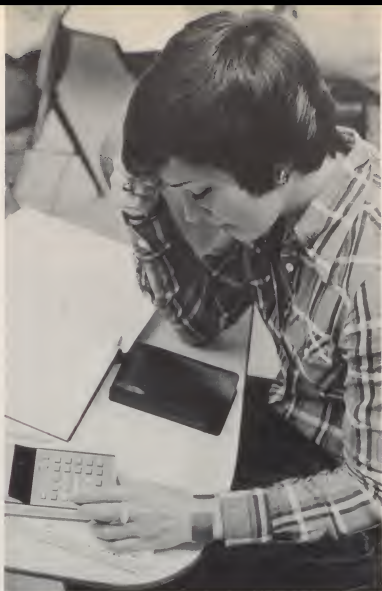

"Repeaton." The Spanish student follows the instruction to repeat what was just said on the tape. Foreign language students found tapes valuable in improving their enunciation.

Postulates, theorems: what's the difference?

Theorems, corollaries, postulates and axioms — all jumbled together in the minds of geometry students readying themselves for a chapter test. Most students never dreamed they would be responsible for so much memorization. In the process some students found themselves confusing theorems with postulates, corollaries with theorems, and so on . . .

Calculators were a common sight in math classes. Geometry students used them to figure out sines, cosines, and tangents, while algebra and analysis students used them to get the simple multiplication and division out of the way so they could concentrate on the more difficult aspects of their work.

With the help of her calculator, senior Julie Marlow reduces the time it takes her to do an analysis problem.

Triangles on non Euclidean planes pose problems for soph Kay Holland as geometry teacher Mrs. Carol Damiano assists her.

Multiplication problems are a breeze for freshman Mike Rataczyk as he works diligently on a general math assignment.

Mass confusion: students search for rooms, cars

First days of summer school brought with it newcomers freshmen wandering around the halls looking for their classes and Driver's Education students searching the parking lot for their Driver's Ed. cars.

English 5 was offered for those juniors who wanted to do their term papers during the summer. In accomplishing this, they didn't have to worry about doing all their research during the regular school year.

The end of summer started Driver's Education students wondering if they would get a waiver. Receiving a waiver meant students earned a "C" average or better on all their Driver's Ed. grades. In obtaining this, students didn't have to take the driving test when they went for their license. But within days students rushed off to the license bureau to get their license — with or without a waiver.

"It was only a loose spark plug," explains junior Malcolm Wick to the other so called "auto mechanics."

To test his reaction time, senior Rich Domsic hits the brake and awaits the result from Driver's Education teacher Mr. Michael Bandura.

Reluctantly preparing for his first timed writing, freshman Gary Szczudlak carefully aligns his paper and adjusts his margin so he'll be ready to go.

Safety drills enable swimmers to avert danger

Before plunging into the swimming pool at the beginning of the swimming course in Miss Judy Hall's gym class, students first learned water safety. Beginning with rescue procedures, the girls learned how to give artificial respiration and basic first aid.

By qualifying for the President's Physical Fitness Award (the A.A.H.Y.P.E.R. test), freshmen boys displayed their endurance, agility, and stamina. Freshman Dave DelToro commented after he qualified, "Some of the tests were really difficult. I thought I'd never make the required time for the 1 1/2 mile run. I'm glad that I pushed myself as hard as I did."

The A.A.H.Y.P.E.R. test consists of seven physical fitness tests. Some of them are: 100-yard dash, 1 1/2 mile run and the broad jump. To qualify for the award the boys had to meet a required time or distance for each test.

Concentration on approach, execution, and entry along with much practice allows freshman Robin Halcarz to perfect her dive during gym class.

"Ready, set, hut," exclaims Mike Blackwell as he huts the ball to Pete Sojka while teammates John Noldin and Roger Jackman get into position during frosh gym class.

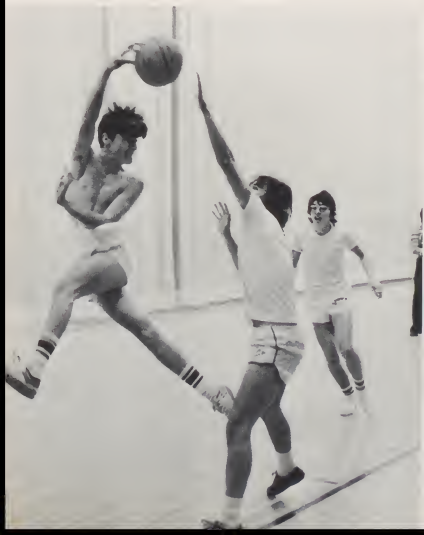

When other things besides volleyball occupy frosh Debbie Swaffar's and Pam Zabinski's minds, an unexpected volleyball headed in their direction can be quite a scare.

To develop muscles and coordination, freshmen Randy Spotten and Brian Cummings run through tires before football scrimmages.

Showing off his own unique style of playing basketball, frosh Mike Opinker passes the ball to Dennis Alexander as Bob Wolanin watches.

Close to the net, freshman Tina Oakley dinks the birdie into her opponents' side in an attempt to catch them off guard.

During swimming, instructor Mr. Bob Hunt takes time out to explain how to achieve more speed by using the proper arm motions of the crawl stroke.

Creativity — key to success in art class

Beginning art students learned the basic techniques of drawing. They also did abstract work and compositions using different shapes and textures.

Second year students did complex figure drawings of people as well as objects.

Advanced art classes made two sculptures. One was made out of layers of plaster of paris while the other was made from cardboard.

Junior Pam Cruse commented, "The sculptures were really difficult because if one layer was done incorrectly the whole sculpture could be ruined."

Before adding another layer students had to be absolutely certain that the previous layer had completely dried.

By posing for several of her classmates, soph Laurie Pecaro can see how she looks in the eyes of her fellow students.

Another layer of plaster of paris is added by senior Darcy Andrews to her sculpture of a man playing a flute.

Rugs made of yarn, like soph George Berry's, not only serve as an art project but are also used at home.

New songs are learned for the Christmas concert as freshmen Dan Young and Doug Ellison practice during Boy's Chorus.

Theory students prepare for careers

Music theory class is comprised of four students and a teacher meeting in a tiny office each day during 6th hour.

These students study chord intervals, progressions, keys, clefs, modulations and ear training. This is all a prerequisite for acceptance to most music schools.

Music theory teacher Mrs. Glenda Kolar stated, "Although the class is small, the students take their work seriously and realize the importance of what they are learning. Music theory is quite difficult and not every student is able to handle it."

Boys and girls chorus were kept busy learning music symbols and new songs for programs.

At the end of the year, tryouts were held for those students wishing to continue their singing. Girls could try out for girls choir. Those whose voices were extremely good proceeded directly to concert choir.

Band arrangements keep music theory students George Tonkovich, Mick Maslar, Cheryl Sobas and Mary Jameyfield occupied as they arrange a piece of music for concert band.

Wrong answers to her bookkeeping problems prove disappointing to senior Julie Mireles; but with the help of teacher Mr. Nick Luketic, she soon gets the right answer.

Exercises dictated by business teacher Mrs. Beverly Watson from notehand books are practiced daily to learn new symbols and review those already learned.

Precision and accuracy are extremely important when doing balance sheets for bookkeeping as junior Bill Breckling carefully totals the amount of his daily income and expenses.

Typists learn by trial, error rough took all four field tests. Ruth took all four field tests.

Looking at a beginning typing student's paper can be like trying to understand another language. If his fingers aren't placed on the right keys, the wrong letters will appear.

At first some students insisted on taking peeks at the keys whenever the teacher wasn't looking, but after several days of practice they began to catch on. "Once I was familiarized with the keys and typing procedures, I concentrated on increasing my speed," commented junior Karen McCrea.

Shorthand students literally learned a different form of communication. Everyday they had to study more and more symbols. Those who put off their assignments found themselves stumbling along during oral readings and found it difficult to cope with the more advanced business courses such as clerical practice and stenography.

Time is running out for junior Caroline Roundtree as she takes the two minute dictation given by shorthand teacher Mrs. Helen Slivka.

While advanced typing students have the advantage of using electric typewriters, beginners, like junior Beth Hess, settle for the manual models.

After transcribing and typing her shorthand assignments, senior Clindy Good takes a dictation from stenography teacher Mr. Ernest Alexander.

Chaos:

Scrambling students battle against time

"Oh my gosh, there's only five minutes left." With these words students began rushing around the room, washing up and putting equipment away. Some students made desperate last minute efforts to finish their experiments.

In addition to lab work science students spent many hours reading assignments and taking tests. Students sometimes complained, "Studying facts is boring!" But later they realized that understanding the basics is essential before attempting more difficult projects.

During the fall biology and earth science classes traveled to the Dunes to study terrestrial life. In the spring biology classes went to Hickory Creek to study aquatic life. Students waded through the water searching for fish and insects. Classes studied water temperature and pollution content.

Chemistry students visited Indiana University Northwest Camp's and attended seminars. Junior Cheryl Treen commented,

"I was really fascinated by the session 'Little Green Chemist.' There were many experiments using liquid nitrogen to freeze substances, such as a raw egg."

Map studying enables junior Carl Kosinski and senior John Ridge to learn about the high and low areas of the Calumet Region.

In deep concentration, senior Sue Shabaz does repeated trials of a mind maze to test her memory during psychology class.

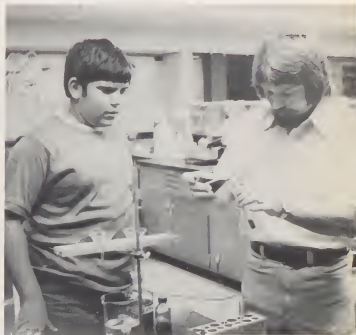

Sophomore Bob Pruitt receives little cooperation from his mouse as he attempts to weight it during biology class.

By adding warm Ringers solution, seniors Joe Boutcher and Don Hoover discover that the heartbeat of a turtle increases greatly.

To test his saliva for sugar and starch freshman Mike Kohanyi works with biology teacher Mr. Bob Weiss to get the results.

Team work proves helpful in chemistry class as senior Anne Knaver and junior Linda Rollins measure and record the temperature of water.

Fate

After 18 years of security, students ask "What's next?"

"My parents are pressuring me into a college career."

"I want to go to work so I can earn enough money to travel."

"My parents can't afford to send me to college so I'm enlisting in the armed forces."

After eighteen years of security in the homes of their parents, these people are contemplating what they are going to do with the rest of their lives.

Being provided with the three basic necessities (food, clothing, shelter) since birth, they realize that now it is up to them to learn to become independent.

In a survey conducted by the Top Hat Staff, 1,320 students were asked about post graduation plans.

41% of the students plan to go to college, 30% plan to work. The other 29% will take vocational training, go to business school, join the armed forces, or get married.

The majority of those taking vocational training started their career training during high school. Some did this by taking classes at Morton in the morning and attending vocational classes in the afternoon at Hammond Tech or Purdue University Calumet Campus. Others went to night school or trained on the job.

68% said they themselves chose the way of life they are planning.

21% said that what they chose was planned together with their parents. The other 10% said that they either didn't know what else to do, that all their friends were doing it, or that their parents wanted it for them.

Do students feel any societal pressures concerning future plans?

In the Top Hat survey, girls were asked: Do you feel pressured into pursuing a typically feminine career, eg. secretary.

The boys were asked: Do you feel pressured into having to go to college to achieve success?

They responded yes, sometimes, or no to their appropriate question.

Only one-third of the girls felt they were sometimes pressured into pursuing a typically feminine career. Very few felt they were definitely pressured.

Boys generally felt they had more pressure on them than girls to go to college and be successful. 50% felt that they were pressured at least sometimes. 25% believed they were definitely being pressured.

Choosing a career can be a very important step in a person's life. Parents don't realize that their children don't always have the same values as they do. The parents may feel that it is most important to have a job that earns a lot of money, whereas the child may want a job through which he can contribute to improving society.*

Most students generally felt that enjoying their job is the most important aspect of their work. This was apparent by the answers to the question: In achieving your career goal, do you think it is most important to:

- a. enjoy your job — 67%
- b. earn a lot of money — 15%
- c. contribute to improving society — 8%
- d. gain status in the community — 1%
- e. have job security — 9%

Whether or not the students of Morton will succeed in their goals or plans is yet to be seen. Between now and the future minor or drastic circumstances may occur to change their plans. Whatever decision they make, they will live with it the rest of their lives.

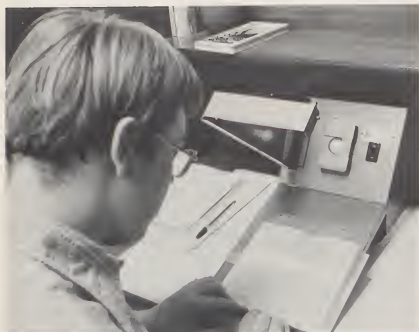

College literature, applications, and forms are more easily comprehended by senior John Pepper with the help of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Pepper.

Even though 71% of the students plan to go to college or work after graduation, some will also take on the added responsibility of marriage.

Aside from morning classes at Morton, junior Linda Powers attends keypunch training at Hammond Tech. With smaller classes she receives more individualized help from her teacher.

With the use of the shadow scope soph Doug Ellison quickly follows the beam of light down a page in "The Pigman."

Analyzing "Stairway to Heaven" in English 3 is done by listening to records or to Mrs. Jan Gillard, English teacher.

While acting out a play in World Lit, senior Dale Young tells how Nicolette (senior Joe Miecznikowski) awaits with open arms for her love Aucassin (senior Mark Hester) to return home on horseback (senior Mike Dujan).

When delivering a speech about famous female models, junior Gina Dorris must keep the speech interesting enough to please the boys as well as the girls in the class.

Speed

Reading machines help students increase reading time

Reading comprehension improved and speed increased because of the use of reading machines. Shadow scopes and pacers helped students increase their reading speed by making them follow a bar or beam of light down a page.

Not only speed but eye expansion was increased with the Tachomatic 500. This machine is similar to a movie of sentences which can have its speed increased or decreased. While watching it, the speed of the movie increased slightly until students' reading speed doubled.

Writing obituaries was one of the first assignments given to Comp. 8 students. Why write obituaries? Students devoted part of the semester to looking into their future. Some students found writing their obituaries difficult because they never thought about their own deaths.

Pantomimes during drama class bring out the ham in senior Mike Prahlow as he pretends to be a famous sculptor molding a statue.

Demonstrating how to wash a dog for their speech can be a sloppy job but sophs Brenda Walters and Teresa Griffith consider it pure fun instead of work.

Stock market in government?

"I want 100 shares of I.T.&T." "I want to sell 25 of my 50 shares in Santa Fe Railroad." Expressions like these were commonly used in one of the government classes. "I'm teaching my economics and government classes about the stock market because I feel they should become aware of the business world they will enter following graduation," stated teacher Mr. Bob Serafin.

Sculptures and written essays were among the projects tackled in world history classes. Geography students also worked on projects. Theirs, however, mainly concerned drawing maps. In the process students learned map terms and locations of cities and countries.

Worksheets pose a problem for senior Dave Kane as he looks through his economics book trying to find the answers to the questions.

Working in small groups enables world history students to complete work sheets and compare answers together.

Weather permitting, world history teacher Mr. George Green breaks the monotony of studying inside by taking his class outdoors.

Castles built for a six week project help sophs LeeAnn Bennett and Sandi Hudec prove their creative ability during world history class.

Graphs prove helpful in the understanding of the rise and fall of the stock market as seniors Linda Doedtman and Donna Kowalski give a report to their government class.

Maps like the one observed by junior Tim Kerrick help explain the expansion of new territory during the forming of the United States.

Surge of equality short lived

With the increasing momentum of the feminist movement, the males of Morton decided to follow along and break out of their stereotypes. Several made history this year by being the first males ever to sign up for foods class. However, after a few days the number of males in the class decreased to zero.

A few girls were a bit more courageous, staying in Single Survival, formerly known as Boy's Cooking. This class was designed to teach students how to manage financially, prepare basic meals, and sew.

Advanced clothing classes spent a good part of the year making Easter dresses for those who couldn't afford to buy any. The Salvation Army provided the money for the material while the girls volunteered their services.

Each girl was given $4 to purchase the material and notions.

By inserting a knife and having it come out clean, sophomores Kim Davis and Karen Rinehart know their French bread is done.

"Which one should I make?" thinks senior Caroletta Osborne while leafing through the McCall's pattern books.

Setting a table for the first time causes commotion among Single Survival students Jim Heath, Bill Cox, Chuck Vines, and John Pepper about the proper placing of dishes.

Delicate fabrics, such as the velvet being ironed by senior Kathy Barrett, require extremely cool iron temperatures.

Problems arising with the threading of her bobbin cost junior Kris Valentine valuable sewing time.

Diaper changing a doll prepares juniors Judy Howard and Linda Markovich to be future "mommies" during family health class.

In order to sand his woods project without holding it, frosh Tim Byrne clamps the board to the table.

Pistons, spark plugs and fan belts may mean little to a home ec student, but to auto mechanics students it's just part of the class.

After heating a metal rod, junior Bob Byrd attempts to shape it into the form he needs to use for his class project.

Dexterity

Key to success in shop class

Some students trained to become blue collar workers. Others just wanted to know some of the traits of a handyman. No matter what their reasons both male and female students filled the different shop classes with hopes of proving their talents.

Learning the names of tools and how to use them properly was one of the first things the shop classes were taught.

"After I learned how to use the tools in woods class, I put the skills I learned together and made an owl plaque," stated junior Jamie O'Drobinak.

Help from junior Dave Gil allows senior Dave Thomas to get an accurate voltage reading from his transistor during electronics class.

To protect their eyes from being damaged by extreme light and sparks, metals students must wear protective masks while welding.

Cabinet shelves receive special care from junior Mark Hamilton as he varnishes his woods project.

Language pupils take journey across Atlantic

Imagine yourself spending Easter vacation over 4,000 miles away from home in Barcelona, Munich, or Paris. Some foreign language students did just that.

Spanish, German and French students had the opportunity to travel to Europe for nine days. This was the second year that Spanish students went to Spain.

For the two other classes it was the first time they visited France or Germany.

The students boarded the plane at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport. For some students it was not only their first time abroad but also their first time flying in an airplane. Sophomore Nancy O'Brien commented, "I couldn't believe it when the captain announced we were 30,000 feet above the ground."

Aside from the trip, classes spent time making a movie, enacting short skits, going to lab, and memorizing vocabulary.

The French and German classes filmed their movie. The students wrote their own scripts, made costumes, and presented their program to the class.

Even though frosh Joe Greene is ready to break open the piñata in Spanish class, he must wait patiently for soph Polly Scott to finish tying on his blindfold. According to tradition, good luck is in store for the blindfolded person who swings at a pinata.

In the German play Pechvogel and Glückskind, unlucky Pechvogel (junior Dan Foster) is scolded and hit on the head by his mean, old aunt (junior Sophie Spudic) after breaking her dinner dishes.

In order for his streak of bad luck to vanish, Pechvogel must go to the princess' (junior Jill Stevens) home and kiss her baby finger.

During the week before Christmas vacation advanced French classes spent time experimenting with French recipes. Junior Cheryl Pauer cuts a bûche de noël which she, Joan Skager, and Terri Urbahns prepared.

Museum exhibit familiarizes students with class objective

A field trip to the Museum of Science and Industry at the beginning of the semester allowed environmental problems students to discover exactly what they would be learning throughout the semester by studying the "Man and His Environment" exhibit.

Oral discussion with topics ranging from MacCarthyism to the sex-pot study of Southern While giving his cont. prob. speech on the E.R.A., senior Dave Deal pauses to listen to amusing comments from his classmates on the possibility of coed restrooms.

Illinois University were brought up in contemporary problems.

"The main reason I let the students take up their own topics and discuss them freely is because I feel it is stimulating for both the students and myself," commented teacher Mr. Don Hodson.

Social issues, a new class formerly known as sociology was offered for the first time this year. The class, which is a mixture of contemporary problems and psychology dealt with how individual and collective groups respond to different circumstances.

Discussing the conflicts of racism, sociology teacher Mr. Bob Serafin attempts to explain causes of the problems.

While visiting the nature center, sophomore Julie Norieka and senior Paula Kruse collect leaf specimens to test for chloroform content.

Participating

Involvement — a word that's become more popular with students over the years. This year an increase in clubs' activities verifies it.

A goal was set in the beginning of the year to have more assemblies. Clubs individually carried on fund raising projects and brainstormed on how to increase their memberships by still more.

Traveling seemed to take up the time of several clubs. One went camping in the outdoors. A few others found staying in dormitories more appropriate while attending weekend seminars at universities.

Chemistry Club member Ken Schaller sells taffy apples after school. Students flocked once a week to the table set up by the west doors to buy a mid-afternoon treat.

Jeff Spotten, Androcles, shakes with terror as he hears the lion's roar. "Androcles and the Lion" was just one play from which participating students earned points towards joining Thesplans.

Out by the Nature Center, Bob Diehl and Joe Greer fasten the chain fence to a steel pole. Chemistry Club devoted itself to money raising projects in order to buy the fence.

Acquaint

Orientation gives better insight of MHS to students, parents

Night fell when incoming freshmen and their parents entered the doors of Morton to attend parent-student orientation on August 27. This was the first project of the Student Association.

Within a year's time, officers, senators, and cabinet members worked hard to unite the student body into one working group, and to organize a better understanding between teachers and students. In doing so, Student Association members attended seminars, acquired more assemblies, and presented a student exchange program. "Getting the students involved seemed easier this year as we had more people eager to help," commented Cathy Riskin, Association recorder. During homecoming week, Student Association created "Fonzi Day." Homecoming week proved successful but there still were the people who said, "I don't want to be the only one participating." Yet the majority involved themselves.

Among the many activities the Student Association sponsored was the Winter Semi-Formal. The theme "Imperial Paradise" set off the right touch for the crowd that gathered. The band "Justice" played songs varying from rock-n-roll to slower, contemporary music.

Association co-sponsor Mr. Phil Hruskovich talks over plans for upcoming assemblies with senior Steve Ignas, assembly committeeman.

Association co-sponsor, Mr. Joseph Gartner directs Cathy Riskin (rec.), Larry Sknerski (pres.) and Mike Malony (v. pres.) through the doors to better government.

FEA encourages teaching career

Encouraging high school students to plan a career in teaching is the goal of the FEA, Future Educators in Action.

November brought the fund raising stationary sale which helped the treasury. Graduates were honored during a social at the end of the school year.

For the last two years, Spain was the destination of Travel Club. Members sold chocolate candy bars to raise money for their trip during spring vacation.

Exploding wire, making electric cars — projects out of the ordinary. However, Physics Club found these experiments challenging. Members did research and learned new ideas and concepts in physics.

Learning new techniques in chess allow Chess Club members to gain more practice and skill.

Though few people belonged to the club, those who participated entered tournaments with other area schools.

The inclined plane is set at a 30-degree angle. How much weight will hold it in place? Physics club members, Joe Greer and Mike Knezevich determine the answer.

Students obtain All-Star award

Holidays were hectic for Morton's Band. During the Christmas season preparations were made for the Hessville and Hammond Parades.

Members placed second in the Hessville Parade for their marching precision and rhythm.

David Teran, Cheryl Pauer and Dale Young were named Purdue University All-Star Band Winners from Morton. All three were recommended by Mrs. Glenda Kolar as exceptional music students.

They received first chair in their respective instrumental divisions out of 175 Indiana students.

Boosting spirits for a victory, Morton's Band adds music to the chants of the cheerleaders.

Sing

Choirs unite to add variety

Participating as a threesome for a variety performance, Concert Choir, Ensemble and Girls Choir joined to present a Christmas Concert, December 14, in Morton's auditorium. Christmas music, pop songs and dancing were featured.

Concert Choir also performed a Sacred Concert at the First Christian Church of Hessville. Members sang current music and traditional hymns.

In the Bicentennial Spring Production, Concert Choir and Girls Choir joined Band for the concert in the auditorium.

Gathering around the piano helps Ensemble members relax as they practice for the Christmas Concert.

Traveling to WGN-TV, and WCAE, WJOB, WTTW radio stations helped A.V. members further their knowledge in the operation of Audio-Visual equipment. They also went about doing their everyday chores of taking equipment to classrooms and setting it up for teachers.

Folk Club members wrote songs and taught lyrics to interested students during weekly meetings. Members also taught guitar lessons to raise money to purchase their own P.A. system.

Electronics club member, Tom McTaggart commented, "Students use club time to assemble kits, fix broken televisions and radios. They also helped other club members with problems they may encounter while completing their work."

Passport pictures, team pictures, homeroom group shots, and the usual scenery pictures are all taken by Photo Club. Members also competed individually in a nationwide photography contest sponsored by the Hartford Insurance Company. Winning photographs will be pictured on the company's 1977 calendar.

Decision

Students make choice between jobs and school activities

The P.A. blares during homeroom:

"There will be a senior class meeting after school today in room 214. Plans for the senior banquet will be discussed."

Morton will host Gavit in our gym tonight. B-game starts at 6:30 and varsity at 8:00. So come out and cheer the boys to victory . . . "

Will all seniors attend the meeting? And how many will come cheer on a victory? Some will; others will find it impossible because of jobs and other obligations they must attend to.

In a recent survey conducted by the Top Hat Staff, 1320 Morton students were questioned about why they work, why they don't, and whether a job interferes with their participation of extracurricular activities.

34% replied they had jobs and 66% stated that they did not. Those who work average 11-20 hours per week. Those who do not hold a job either cannot find one or are not old enough.

The age problem for those seeking jobs is reflected in the percentage of working underclassmen and upperclassmen. 26% of the underclassmen work and 74% do not. As age increases, upperclassmen find it easier to find jobs. 45% maintain jobs while 55% do not.

Attitudes vary in the reasons students hold jobs. The question was posed: What is your reason for working?

- A) to help support yourself
- B) to earn extra spending money
- C) to save for college, marriage, future purchases
- D) to pay for a car, car expenses

More than half of the students who work do so for extra spending money. They work for present expenses: cars, dates, clothes, etc. 48% and 16% chose B and D, respectively.

Because students live at home, most don't have the worries of supporting themselves. Only 14% chose A. However, future expenses provide another reason students work, as 22% chose C.

Do jobs interfere with student participation in school activities? Would students participate more if not working? Working students who were polled on the first question were practically split evenly. 52% claimed that their participation was not hampered by jobs, while 48% said jobs interfered. Commenting on their participation in school activities, 75% of the working students stated that they would not participate more even if they did not work.

Whether students work or not does not always hamper their involvement in school activities. There is the student who has a job, carries a full classload, yet is able to participate in sports and maintain decent grades. On the other hand, there exists the student who does not work, goes to school daily, but still does not participate in any extracurricular activities.

"... Tryouts for the one-act plays will be held Monday at 3:30 in the large auditorium."

"There will be a mandatory Student Association meeting third hour in the small auditorium."

Will you be present at any of these activities?

- A) Yes.
- B) No, I have to work.
- C) No, I have other obligations.
- D) No, I just don't care . . .

For some people Friday nights mean going to games and having fun, but for others like senior Bob Johnson it means spending the evening working.

Isn't it the truth?! Everyone wants to be involved in school activities but when it comes to organizing an event only a few people participate.

Always on the go, senior Janet Goginsky manages to hold a job and participate in girls sports without any interference in keeping up her grades.

Students display work at science seminars

Morton hosted a Junior Academy of Science meeting which informed students about projects other Indiana science students had accomplished. Members traveled to Butler University to attend an Academy of Science meeting. Joe Greer spoke on "The isolation and identification of the anaerobic bacteria clostridia from soil and fecal samples."

Traveling to state parks for camping trips and for fossil hunting were some activities for Geology-Herpetology Club. Geology Club and Herpetology Club united this year because they shared similar interests and were alike in the studies they made.

Chicago's Science and Industry ushered in Christmas by hosting area Foreign Language clubs to a Christmas around the world program held December 13.

Springtime brought a group from Cincinnati's Oberlin University to Morton. The group of students and faculty performed a musical program of different foreign cultures.

This year, Hiking Club traveled to the Porcupine Mountains in Michigan, and Isle Royale in Lake Superior. Backpacking hikes and raft trips brought club members closer to nature.

"We lost a lot of our varsity members last year; that's the only thing hurting us this year. We need more replacements now," commented debate coach, Mr. Doug Fix.

Squad receives best pep rally, best spirit awards

Best pep rally and best spirit awards went to the varsity cheerleading squad at Lakeland College in Wisconsin during the summer. The squad also traveled, November 8, to Vincennes, Indiana, where the girls participated in workshops and a cheering competition. They received an excellent rating in their five-girl cheering division.

Senior, Connie White commented, "It is a real experience to attend camp because you meet so many people and a lot of cheering ideas are passed around to all participants."

Theatre Guild presents student-faculty workshop productions

Theatre Guild offered students a "last chance" before the end of the school year to perform in a production. Students and faculty members assembled to arrange what they called "workshop productions."

They consisted of two one-act plays, performed on April 7. The faculty directed and performed one of them, while the other involved students.

The faculty director was Ms. Linda Luttringer and the student director was junior Dean Witte.

Expressing his feelings on the production, Dean Witte commented, "It was planned in hopes that more students would get involved in theater. I was happy with the turnout of students and the success of the performance."

The Top Hat Theatre put on four other productions throughout the school year. They included "Androcles and the Lion," "Our Town," "Hansel and Gretel," and "The Fantasticks."

During the play "Our Town", Phyllis Rittthaler (townsperson), Dave Deal (Simon Stimson), Doreen Mlsh (Mrs. Soames), Regina Dorris (Mrs. Gibbs), Androcles (Jeff Spotten), Isabella's uncle's servant, gives Isabella (Debby Zaher) a dowry of gold so she can get married during the production of "Androcles and the Lion."

Summer fun ends early for Mortonite staff

While most students spent the few remaining weeks of August swimming and sunbathing, work started early for the Mortonite staff. Staff members started their work ahead of time to insure that a newspaper would be ready for the students on their first day back to school.

During the year, staffers worked hard to keep up with the bi-weekly deadlines. Within two weeks time, reporters wrote stories, photographers snapped pictures, and editors made up pages. Wednesday afternoons before distribution day found staffers doing paste ups at the printer. Such a hectic schedule resulted in having a paper distributed on time.

To replace last year's page editors, Mortonite changed to section editors — the new sections included news, sports, and feature.

"Being on the Mortonite has had its ups and downs. When deadlines roll around, it's a madhouse with everyone getting big headaches. When the paper comes out, you feel a sigh of relief, commented Joe Farmer, editor.

Satisfied with the way her story turned out, news editor Nancy Roquet smiles in delight.

Top Hat receives Medalist rating

"Is this layout O.K.?" "Write a caption for this picture!" These common "frantic" phrases are heard in the Top Hat room near deadline time. Staffers often scramble about the room yelling, "Where's Harry?" or "Where's Bob?"

Top Hat received a Medalist rating from Columbia Scholastic Press Association for last year's book. This rating is the highest award given by the CSPA.

Commenting on her job as sports co-editor, Regina Oros stated, "Having your own section to worry about makes you start thinking the minute you walk through the publication room door."

Example layouts prove helpful as faculty editor Mitch Marks uses them in preparing for his section.

Competing

"It's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game." Following the motto, athletes learn to cope with failures as well as with victories.

Larger crowds showed up at games this year. More and more students decided to spend Friday nights cheering the teams on.

1975 — International Women's Year, with it, the passage of Title IX of the 1973 U.S. Education Amendments. When it's put into effect, equal funding and facilities will have to be allocated for female and male athletes.

After the break of the huddle, the play is put into action. Quarterback Glenn Brennan tries to catch the opposing team off guard by passing the ball to teammate John Muta.

Straining for the last few feet, Dale Snyder puts out all his energy to finish the last leg of the race. Perfect timing is required of a runner to grasp the baton and turn in a winning time.

Janet Goginsky, Kathy Kosanovich and Mayre Polochak give volleyball coach Miss Aletta Hicks their undivided attention. Time outs allowed a chance for replotting strategies.

Gridmen shine with 7-3 record

Hard summer conditioning proved its importance when the gridmen subdued West Side 36-32 in the first game. Consisting of sixteen seniors and many underclassmen, the varsity squad's experience and speed helped it win its first seven contests. This sparkling start ranked Morton fifteenth in the state. On Oct. 24, the Gavs met their real test against unbeaten 7th ranked Bishop Noll. With less than five minutes gone in the game, a 19-yard Brennan to Deal pass gave Morton its only score. Morton was unable to score any more points and fell to the Warriors 22-8. Varsity members named Dave Deal as Most Valuable Player.

Wick named MVP, sets new record

Up at 5:30 with the cool brisk winds blowing at their faces, Archer's army ran every morning all year round. Each runner practiced mornings and evenings to keep himself in shape.

Junior Malcolm Wick broke his own record at the Bishop Noll meet with a time of 12:40 in the 2 1/2 mile run. Malcolm was also named MVP this year. Sophomore Jesse Robles received the Most Improved award on the varsity team.

The Harriers dual record was 8-3 for the season, with a conference record of 7-1. During sectionals the Harriers placed 9th out of 23 teams. They also placed 4th in the Lake Shore Conference meet.

At the Bishop Noll-Whiting meet, Junior Malcolm Wick sets a new school record of 12:40 in the 2 1/2 mile run.

Reaching out for his finish tab Junior Ed Brumfield places 13th in the 2 1/2 mile run.

Maloney places first in number two singles

Coaching the tennis team for his second year, Mr. Darrell Johnson entered almost all upperclassmen in the Lake Shore Conference tourney. Four of the five teams were eliminated before the final matches.

No. 2 singles, Mike Maloney defeated his opponent in three sets, 6-7, 6-2, 6-2. Moving into the semi-finals, he overcame his E.C. Washington opponent in competitive sets. He defeated Clark's George Zabrecky in three sets, 7-5, 6-7, 6-1, in the finals to gain the Lake Shore Conference No. 2 singles crown.

Upset by Andrean, the Morton netters held their rackets high to win the next four matches. John Ridge, Jeff Bond, and the doubles team of Dave Ficko-Rick Skertic won their matches against Whiting in two sets each. The varsity team won two more matches over Tech and Gavit to end the season with a 6-8 record.

Senior Mike Maloney uses a back hand that won him the number two singles title in the city tourney.

In a ready stance, senior Tom Keilman plays the net closely waiting for the serve.

Sounds of dropping volleyballs echoed throughout the gym, as the girls began tryout practices the first day of school. Coached by Miss Miriam Costanza, B-Team began regular practices October 8. The varsity squad, chosen from last year's teams, followed a summer conditioning program and started with regular drills during the September practices.

Both teams opened their seasons at Gavit against S.B. Riley and Gavit. Caught off guard by its opponents' strong offense, varsity suffered defeats to both teams. B-team overcame Gavit but received a defeat from S.B. Riley. Throughout the rest of the season both squads were defeated only one more time. B-team finished with a 19-2 season record.

New offense captures first sectional title for cagers

Sitting patiently on the bench, Coach Russ Marcinek contemplates new strategy for sectionals.

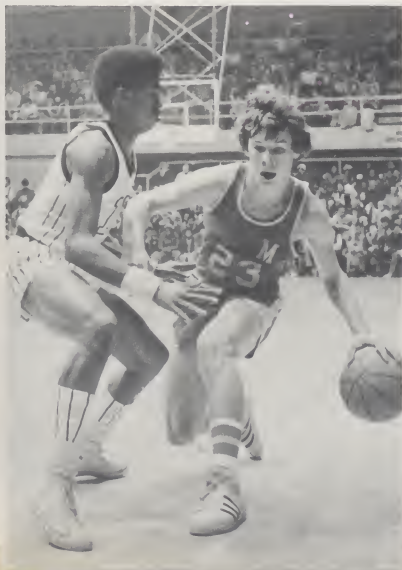

Senior Mike Stanny releases the ball just in time to get a shot from his West Side opponent.

Making an assumption about the varsity basketball squad's success after seeing the first four games would have been deceiving for any Morton fan. Senior Mike Stanny hit a last-second shot against Hobart to put the varsity cagers on the winning track. After leaving Lew Wallace to recover from a 78-66 loss, the Govs edged Bishop Noll by two points.

Coach Russ Marcinek's constant changing of forwards during the season proved to be profitable by bringing in more high-scoring individuals for sectionals.

Hard practices with full concentration from each player prepared the Governors for sectionals. The cagers used board control and good defense to overcome Hammond Tech, 60-53, in the sectional championship game.

The team finished the season with 11-9 overall mark and a 5-2 Lake Shore Conference record.

Taking advantage of this "bread and butter" shot, Matt Ramian swishes a free throw, as his teammates position themselves for a rebound.

Guard Steve Vermejan drives down the side of the court keeping his body between the ball and his Tech opponent.

Less turnovers cause more wins

Dropping the season's opening game against Highland may have had some effect in the other games this year. As the season progressed, a minimum of errors resulted in precision performances by Coach Greg Janicich's B-team roundballers.

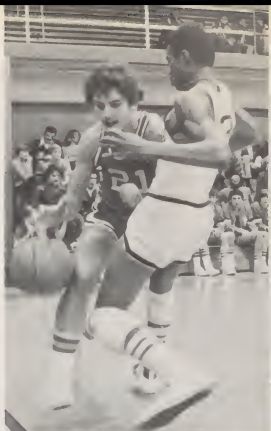

Unlike the team last year, B-squad was composed of all new players with the exception of a single veteran player, Jaime Calderon. High scorers remained consistent throughout the season.

Efforts by Jaime Calderon, John Fowler, Jim Turner, Don Weaver, Dan Cox, and Darryl Simko proved to be successful in winning many of their games this season. B-team finished with a 7-11 overall record.

Frosh hampered by inexperience

In their first victory, the freshman basketball team rolled over Clark, 41-25 after suffering five consecutive losses. The next two games also proved victorious as the frosh cagers topped Horace Mann and Gavit by 12 and 9 point margins. Hammond Tech edged the freshman team 38-33 although Mike Murray and Gary Adzia reached double figures.

Participating in a post-season tourney, the frosh cagers were caught off guard by Hammond High. The team stayed within a close five point margin, but in the third period, the Gavs fell behind and lost 62-31.

B-team girls end undefeated; varsity topples Gavit, 50-42

Two on the rebounder, an important aspect of defense, is used by frosh Peggy Scott and soph JoAnn Stribiak.

Tactics such as a man-to-man defense, box-and-one, 3-1-1 zone press, and 2-2-1 press helped the girls varsity post a 12-4 season record. A constant changing of strategy throughout games was effective in upsetting many teams.

This was the first year that a girls state championship was held. Morton participated in the Hammond sectional. In its first encounter, it breezed by Hammond Tech. However the lady Gavs suffered their fourth loss in the championship game.

Coach Pat Premetz started her B-team cagers in a 2-1-2 zone defense in the season opener against E.C. Roosevelt.

During the Christmas holiday practices, Mrs. Premetz began training her team into a man-to-man defense. The use of this defense enabled the team to limit its opponents' scoring to a minimum.

Caught off guard, sophomore Karen Brilmyer finds an inside pass from Kathy Chance for an open shot.

Tankmen set 7 new records

Tankmen broke seven new records this swimming season. The 200-yard medley relay of senior Tom Sliwa, sophomores Scott Wilson, Tim Downey, and Dale Snyder set a record with a time of 1:53.2. Wilson set a new record for the 100-yard backstroke at 1:04.5. Sliwa tied the 50-yard freestyle record at 24:3. Junior John Taylor recorded a time of 5:30 in the 500-yard freestyle.

While Wilson broke the backstroke at 1:04.8, Downey set a record for the 100-yard breast stroke at 1:09.7. A record time of 53.8 was set for the 100-yard freestyle by Louis Anderson.

The 400-yard freestyle relay team of Snyder, Anderson, Mike Wimmer and John Taylor broke a record with a time of 5:30.

Co-Captains for the year were Paul Meier and Tom Sliwa.

Kuhn advances to regionals

Hard workouts, consisting of running laps in the gym for one to five minute time periods, were a part of the wrestling conditioning. After running, the varsity grapplers would use their weights to build up their muscle endurance. Wrestling with boys in the same weight class finished off each practice so that each wrestler could learn his mistakes and improve his style.

Varsity grapplers pinned Hammond Tech by registering three decisions, three pins, and two forfeits.

The grapplers recorded two more matches over Whiting and E.C.

Roosevelt. In the Roosevelt match Karl Kuhn earned his 12th win.

Kuhn advanced to regionals by defeating Noll's Kevin O'Neill.

Coach Dan Luncsford tries to give Ken Mullins inspiration to win his match when he is behind.

In the 98 lb. weight class, John Browning uses his top spot to get his opponent in a cradle.

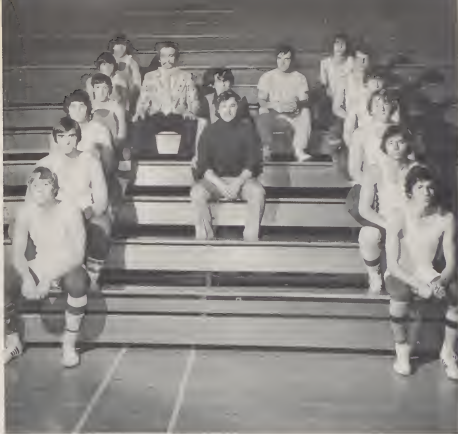

Smooth movement and a firm grip on his opponent assist George Kender to move in for the advantage.

Although he is on top, senior Sam Calabrese is held in a head lock by his Clark opponent.

Girls' track members discuss the times of their events with Coach Susan Woodfill at the Gavit meet.

Changes expand track events

"The conditioning was difficult, but it was challenging enough to keep me going," stated junior Theresa Jansky, the first girl mile-runner. The mile run was only one change in the girls track program. The standing broad jump was one event that was eliminated.

In sectionals, Gayle Szczudlak took first in the running long jump and the 440-yard relay took a second.

Under the guidance of Coach Pat Premetz, the girls' tennis team posted its only win of the 1975 season by clobbering Merrillville, 6-1. Five singles and one doubles team all recorded victories.

Mr. Darrell Johnson, the boys tennis coach became the new girls tennis coach for the 1976 season.

Gayle Szczudlak uses balance and perfect timing to achieve a successful jump for first place at Gavitt.

Coming near the end, Robin Taylor hands the baton to Beth Plaskett to finish the last leg of the race.

Finishing first in the 440-yard relay, junior Micki Tutush pushes the last steps to reach the finish line.

Theresa Jansky, the only girl at Morton to run the mile, sets the first record time of 6:40:9.

Getting in position to return the serve, Laura Loser and Cheryl Pauer concentrate on the winning point.

Varsity track team captures 1st place Championship

Long hard hours of practice and patience paid off this season for the B-team cindersmen as they went on to capture the Indiana Lake Shore Conference Track and Field Championship for the second year in a row. The individual awards amounted to 12 letters out of a total of 20 team members.

Five records were broken in the '75 season. One record was set by Pete Zneimer in the high hurdles with a time of 15.7. Four B-team juniors also broke records; Malcolm Wickramasakera set a new time of 10.17 in the two-mile run. Dave Gil set a new record in the pole vault event with a record of 10.9. The shot put record was broken by Bill Hood with a distance of 44.10.

'75 season ends losing streak

"This has been the best season the varsity golf team has had in the four years I've been on the team," replied senior Karl Kuhn.

Playing their first match against Hanover Central, the linksmen came out ahead and won 179-220. This game set the linksmen on to a winning streak winning 17 games in a row.

Losing to Highland by four strokes didn't seem to bother the linksmen's winning streak as they came right around and beat E.C. Roosevelt to start another one right over again.

The most valuable player award for the year went to senior Fernando Vela.

Varsity Golf — Fernando Vela, Karl Kuhn, Chris Delache, Lou Vauter, Jim Weaver, Coach Onie Penzato.

Gov kickmen are league champs

Teamwork is one of the reasons Morton's kickmen finished the 1975 season 11-1. The chain of victories started when Morton shutout Hammond High 5-0. The second shutout came when Morton defeated Clark, 8-0. Sliding by Munster, 2-3, Morton met up with arch-rivals, the Gavit Glads. The Governors beat Gavit, 2-0.

Morton's winning streak ended when Hammond High took revenge on the Govs. The final score was 1-0. Without despair, the kickmen went out and finished the rest of the season without a loss.

The Govs took first place in season standings with a 9-1 record.

In tournament play, Morton's kickmen captured the city championship. In the first game, Morton downed Munster, 3-2. To win the tournament crown, Morton shutout Gavit, 3-0 for the final victory.

Mr. John Pimentel was the new soccer coach for the '75-'76 season.

A successful steal by junior Mark Ramberg enables him to pass the ball down to another Gov teammate.

Using his feet along with his head, junior Randy Segally struggles with a Tiger in a game against Tech.

Governors split sectional record

Overcoming the bounds of cold weather and rain, the baseball team ended its '75 season with a 15-12 record. The diamondmen's biggest victory for the season was achieved against E.C. Roosevelt as the players came from behind and won the game with a score of 14-5. Playing their next game against E.C. Roosevelt, the diamondmen fell behind in the fifth inning and lost the game 3-6.

This year the diamondmen split their sectional record, with a win against Griffith 8-6, but turned right around to lose against Highland 0-6.

Socializing

At most, a student spends nearly seven hours in school. Subtract this from the total hours in a day and leave time for sleep. You find there's still time left over.

How's it spent . . . where does it go?

All of it's channeled back into something. Jobs take up a large percentage of free time.

Students find it more convenient to earn their own money than to ask for some from their parents and then answer to them as to how it's spent.

Some students devote their free time to making school activities successful. Often times individuals receive recognition for their accomplishments.

Other find they have just enough time to go out and have a good time with their friends.

Following Friday night games, dances are usually held. Attendance depends on the advanced publicity and on the band performing.

Off In a world of his own, a student leans against a light post for support. Vandalism continued and remained a problem that the administration has yet to solve.

It's a race to the railing to find a place to sit during lunch. Pleasant weather coaxes students out of the cafeteria. Students are entertained by cars racing through the parking lot.

Rowdy

Bursts of energy spur seniors to active involvement

"Hey, it's really great to be a senior!" exclaimed Mary Gerovac.

"I can go in my classes and have fun without worrying so much about my grades."

That's one way of looking at one's final year in high school. Many seniors need only a few classes to accumulate credits for graduation.

Since most seniors didn't spend a full day in school, they looked to outside sources for ways to spend their free time. Jobs occupied many afternoons and evenings. Other seniors devoted time to different hobbies and interests. Still others lingered in school after their last class and involved themselves in school activities.

Things had changed since last year. Seniors seemed to be bypassing the present and concentrating on the future. Many seniors began making definite plans concerning college and their careers early in the school year. For those people the year couldn't pass quickly enough. For those still undecided about their future the year went by too quickly.

"I spent the entire year trying to figure out what I want to do and I'm still not sure," commented John Ridge. "This year just went by too quickly."

Some spirited horseplay in the halls results in senior Tim Costa and Ray Sumner dueling with rolled newspapers until one will finally collapse with laughter or exhaustion.

After eating their lunch at McDonald's, seniors Gayle Lohse, Leslie Itczak, Cindy Rubino, and Conda Joseph release their newly gained energy by using their straws as weapons.

During football season the senior guys were the rowdy ones in the stands, but during basketball season seniors Sue Cudzio, Nancy Kayden, and Kim Shoemaker show off their own kind of enthusiastic spirit.

Hassles

Friday night in Hessville: Teenage Wasteland

"How are we going to fit Shirley and her cousin in this car?"

"We aren't going to be able to drink in the car because there's too many people."

"That's okay, John's parents are away so we can drink there. Where's Shirley's cousin from?"

"Some hick town."

"Oh, she sounds fun."

Shirley and Suzy get in the car. Suzy asks if they can stop at a store for some cigarettes. When she gets back in the car, Shirley asks her if she wants anything to drink. Suzy says, "Yeah I'll have a coke."

Amidst the laughter someone hears a siren.

"Not again," says Patty as she pulls the car over, this is the third weekend in a row.

The policeman approaches the car asking, "Do you realize how fast you were going, young lady?"

Patty replies, "I really wasn't paying attention."

"You were going 45 in a 20. I'll let you go this time, but pay more attention to your driving."

"Boy are we lucky he caught us before we hit the liquor store."

"Hey, who's buyin' this time?"

"I'm not, I always get carded."

"Patty, you look the oldest."

"It doesn't matter, anyone can buy here."

"Yeah, but you'd better buy."

"All right what do you want?"

"A pint of rum and a twelve pack."

"Suzy do you want anything?"

"Yeah, I'll have some beer."

Patty and Shirley come out of the store and put it in the trunk.

"Who knows where John lives?"

"I do."

They go to the party. They pass the group in the kitchen and join the people in the living room.

Suzy sips on a beer as the stereo blares the sounds of Jethro Tull.

She overhears someone asking if they can get high in the house.

John says, "No, you'd better not. My parents might be home tonight."

"Is anyone upstairs?"

"Yeah, it's just as crowded up there as down here."

"I can imagine how many people are gonna come after the game."

Suzy sits down and watches as the house fills up with people.

Members of the team start coming in. One player seems furious. He accuses Harold of kicking in his car windows.

Harold denies the accusation saying, "Hey man, I didn't go near your car. I've been here all night." John and a few friends pull them apart. John throws Arnold a beer and says, "Don't get so rowdy!"

Arnold walks to the other side of the room where his teammates are and shotguns the beer.

Gradually the music and the people become louder. The group in the kitchen joins the people in the living room. Arnold seems to get over his anger and starts joking with Harold.

Suzy gets up to try and find her cousin. Shirley is buzzin. When Suzy finds her, she asks what the neighbors will say. Shirley tells her not to worry.

Suzy squeezes through the people to her old seat where she compares her tranquil weekends at home to this wild bash.

She looks at the clock and decides to take a walk. She grabs her coat and as she's walking out, she hears Roger Daltrey accompanied by half the crowd screaming, "They're all wasted!"

Traffic violations often present a problem for teenage drivers. Being stopped by the police often just results in the issuing of warnings.

A quick cigarette between classes leaves no time for courtesy. Many students use washroom sinks for ashtrays and garbage cans.

With aid of fake IDs, teenagers are able to acquire illegal beverages. Finding a place to drink poses more of a problem than getting the supplies.

Ambitious

Juniors get down to business, work hard to achieve set goals

"It sure was nice knowing that everyone was eager to help with class activities because the work seemed easier and went by faster," commented Cary Banka.

The junior class was kept busy this year with constructing a float, building a girls' powder puff football team, sponsoring a dance and selling candy.

Obtaining a prom site, choosing a band and organizing parent and decoration committees were quite time consuming.

During the month of October the junior girls faced the senior girls in the annual Booster Club powder puff game. The juniors fell to the seniors in overtime.

Later in the month the inexperienced crew of juniors constructed a float depicting the theme of "Put a Tiger in your Tank."

"Not only did we have our regular load of work, but this year we were struck with PSAT and SAT tests and writing term papers," stated Susie Enoksen. Those students interested in entering college were required to take the PSAT and SAT tests during the year.

Junior secretary Theresa Coots looks out over the junior class to keep close watch on the events.

Sophomore candle sale builds treasury for '77 prom

To raise money to help finance next year's prom, the sophomore class sold candles. Ruth Drake was the top sales person for the second consecutive year. Candles featured Currier and Ives' winter scenes and came in a variety of shapes and styles.

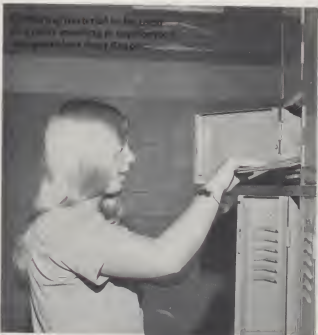

Keeping with tradition, sophomores bought class rings. Rings were purchased from local jewelers or through the school.

Students chose from a variety of stones such as, emeralds, starbursts, and sapphires.

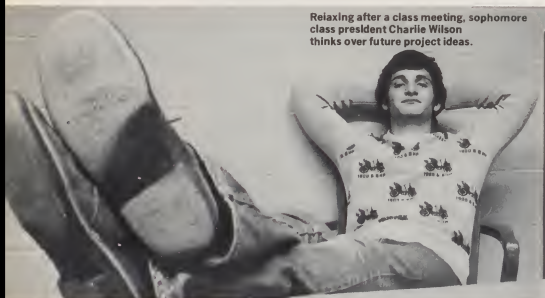

Sophomores also participated in the homecoming festivities. Frequent flower makings resulted in enough red flowers to cover the truck, while the words ROWDY, "78," and "Govs are great!" were spelled out in grey kleenex flowers.

Keeping an eye on the sophomore class, secretary Diana Coots keeps projects running smoothly and effectively.

Anxious

Eager frosh gain confidence in joining high school life

This year the freshman class received the spirit stick at the homecoming football game. The varsity cheerleaders and selected teachers chose the winning class by deciding which class displayed the most spirit. "It was a close race against the juniors. Even though we did win the spirit stick, we could have gotten it a lot easier if we would have had some support from the guys," stated freshman Debbie Lynk. Freshmen elections came soon after school started leaving little campaigning time for candidates.

All of the offices were filled by girls, as in previous years.

Although the freshmen were unable to vote for a Homecoming Queen candidate, they held an election of their own. John Greene and Candy Felty were chosen to represent the freshman class in homecoming activities, and to present the queen with her crown and roses.

The selling of little stuffed animals was the first money raising project the class sponsored. Other projects were planned to build their funds.

All girl officers lead the freshmen class. They include president Katy Egan, vice-president Nancy Ziel, and secretary Shari Brehmer.

Changes

Mateja, Gartner work together as assistant principals

The opening of the school year brought changes to Morton and the school city. In July,

Dr. Willard Congreve became superintendent of the Hammond School System.

Restructuring of the administration also took place during the summer in the city's high schools. Mr. Phillip Mateja and Mr. Joseph Gartner began working together as assistant principals.

Mr. Gartner's job not only involved the usual Dean of Students' chores of enrollments, attendance and discipline, but included being a middleman between the school and colleges, community businesses and organizations.

Mr. Mateja maintained the other half of the assistant principal job, that of coordinating student curriculum, activities and summer school. He supervised the purchasing of textbooks and materials, and scheduled the usage of building facilities.

Eight new faculty members joined the staff. They included Mr. Daniel Luncsford, science; Ms. Patricia Mikuta, business; Mr. Leo Orloff, English; Miss Carol Palikan, special education;

Mr. Martin Stiglitz, English; Ms. Betty Lundahl, guidance; and para-professionals, Mrs. Janet Hetterscheidt and Mrs. Sue Vineyard.

Custodians combat never-ending problem: temperature control

Custodian Staff — Les Rhodda, John Riley and Fred Alspach.

Office Staff — Mrs. Shirley Davis, Mrs. Jean Gillespie, Mrs. Norma Smack, Mrs. Lucille Balas, Mrs. Joyce Kovacek, Mrs. Eleanor Randall and Ms. Juanita Werth.

Cafeteria Staff — First Row: Mrs. Judy Hill, Mrs. Mary Shurman, Mrs. Phyllis Davis, Mrs. Charlotte Goodson, Mrs. Lois Spotten, Mrs. Ruth Browning, Mrs. Therese Nowacki, Mrs. Nancy Patton, Mrs. Philomena Sickles. Back Row: Mrs. Nora Winscher, Mrs. Marjorie Lea, Mrs. Phyllis Newman, Mrs. Marjorie Marlow, Mrs. Helen Shock, Mrs. Betty Markovich, Mrs. Norma Easton, Mrs. Thelma Gross, Mrs. Delores Jelenksi and Mrs. Elizabeth Floyd.

Allowing Comp. 7 and 8 classes to use creativity on the screen, Ms. Linda Luttringer and Mrs. Charlotte Hardesty explain video taping.

Mr. George Nelson checks I.D.'s at the Chemistry Club Bicentennial-Black Light dance to limit the number of uninvited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ruff enjoy the music and dancing at the prom. The faculty staff was invited to attend the formal event.

Homecoming, dances, games draw faculty interest

After the Whiting-Morton basketball game, Mr. William Archer discusses game strategy with Mr. Theodore Diamond before a dance.

"Hats off to the Governors" day inspires Mr. Russ Marcinek to don his favorite hat during Homecoming spirit week.

Dr. Mary Pettersen and Mrs. Nancy Squibb chaperone and collect tickets at the Chem Club dance. School activities involve many teachers.

Chaperoning the Washington trip proves a mistake for Mr. Randy Starewicz and Mr. Doug Fix as they find themselves locked in the stocks.

Spending

Businesses are the backbone of any community. The money that shoppers spend at stores is eventually cycled back into the city.

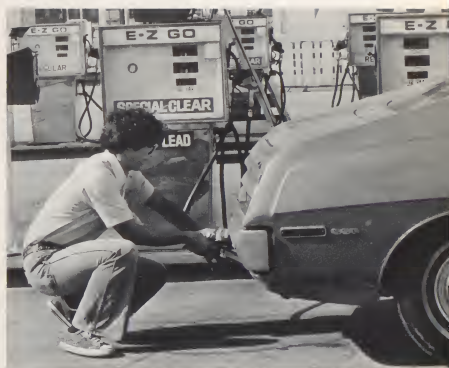

There's a sale at the shopping center.

I think I'll go there."

Stores compete with each other to bring in more customers. Every day newspapers are filled with advertisements telling of bargain prices available for only a short time.

Area teens make up a large percentage of the buying public. They grow to patronize certain stores and largely determine the establishments' profits.

Stores line Indianapolis Boulevard on all sides ranging from quick food spots to insurance offices, shoppers find it handy to have them all close by.

Amazed at the number of belts in stock, junior Les Eagen realizes that shopping for a belt isn't as easy as he thought it would be. With the large variety, he finds it hard to choose.

As a service station attendant, senior Marvin Jones learns to deal with people in a friendly yet businesslike manner. He pumps gas after school and on weekends to earn extra money.

High School is a waste of time . . .

. . . unless you find a job that turns you on and makes good use of your education. Inland Steel wants only people who want to use everything they've learned in high school--and strongly desire to grow personally and in their chosen field.

Inland's future growth depends on the creativity and productivity of its people. If you want a really challenging opportunity to contribute--with the rewards and responsibilities that go with it--Inland wants to talk to you.

We need action-seeking graduates for opportunities in clerical . . . production . . . technical . . . and craft apprenticeship areas.

Think it over. If you have high aspirations and a good high school record, take time to find out about a career with us.

One of a kind

By now you should have a feel of what Morton's like. Some of it is all too familiar — just part of an everyday routine. Some of it is familiar to only a few. Long strenuous hours of practice hold a special meaning to the sweat-drenched athlete. Putting off assignments 'till the night before they're due, keeps some students up all night. Others find it a waste of time to lose sleep over homework.

2063 students — no one can possibly know everyone.

"Who's he?"

"I don't know, I've never seen him before."

If you walk to your classes down the same halls every day, you notice others doing the same. Faces become associated with mannerisms. You learn to avoid the kid who races down the hall and to make sure never to get caught behind the couple who feels they have all the time in the world to get to their next class.

Each year seniors graduate and a new crop of freshmen appear. In spite of the constant turnover of students, they remain the same over the years. Freshmen always look forward to the end of their first year and can't wait to be seniors. Sophomores look forward to being upperclassmen. Juniors can't wait for the seniors to leave. Seniors wonder how four years could have gone by so fast.

It's typical ... but there's no other school just like it.

It's dimensionable ...
It's Morton!

Chris Karalas finds dancing an impossibility on crutches. Because of a skiing accident, she has to forfeit "kicking it out" at the dance.

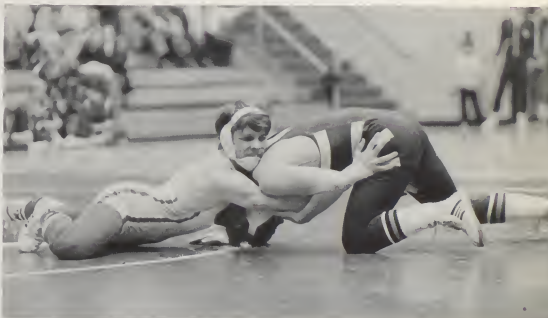

In Comp 8, students experience being an outsider trying to break in the circle. Jeff Brazenas and Mike Maloney are unsuccessful in their attempt.

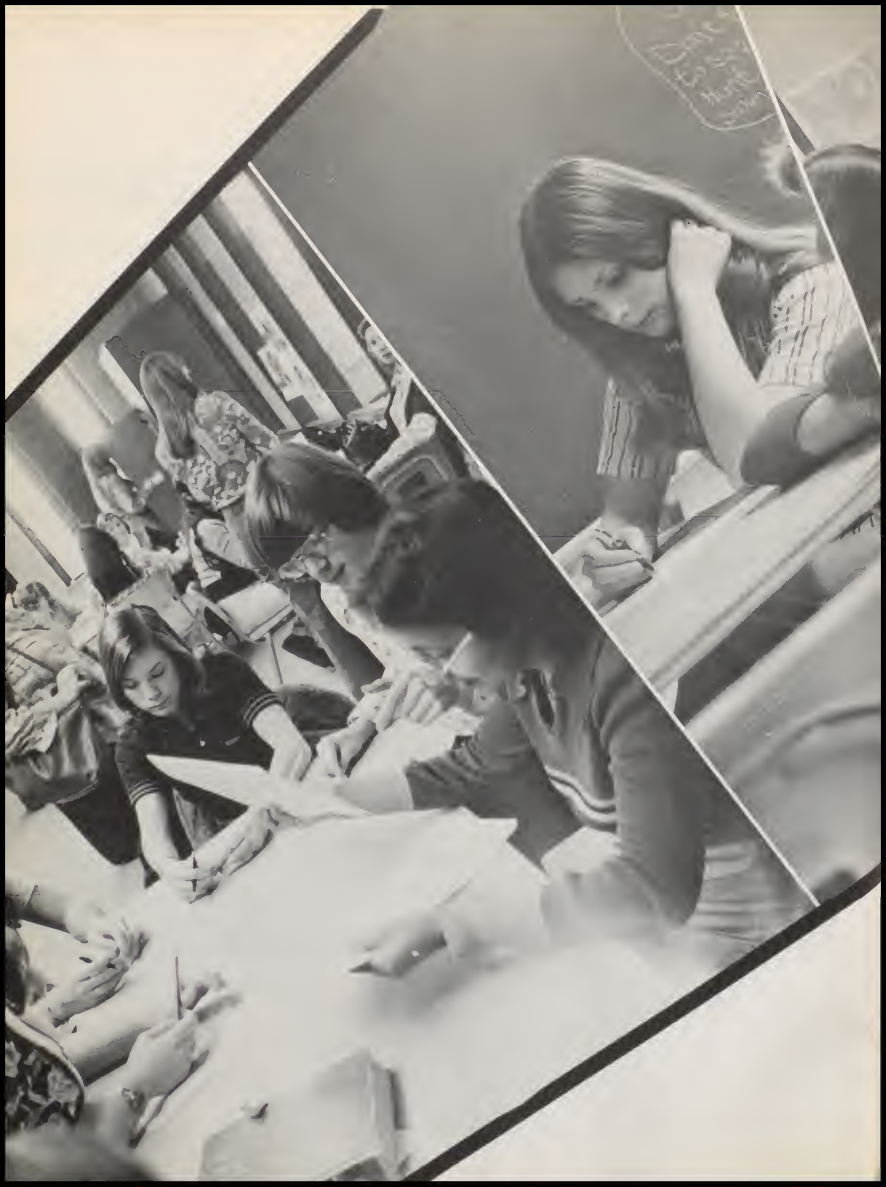

Lunch hours in the cafeteria — a place and time not only to eat but also to catch up on latest assignments and congregate with friends.

Taking advantage of the warm temperatures, Morton students and companions sit outside and contemplate the scene.

Trying to get the top position, senior Dave Hulsey uses quick moves to escape from his opponent in a decisive match.

Standing on third base trying to decide whether or not to steal home is senior Steve Vermajan as he talks it over with Coach Jack Gerogas.

Nothing can be completely achieved without the help from the people behind the scenes. Therefore, we want to acknowledge the help of all individuals who aided in the production of the '76 Top Hat. Thanks to Mr. Edward Andros for underclass pictures and Mr. Oscar Bodie for senior portraits; Mr. Robert Hickman for his illustrations on the national spread; Time magazine for the pictures used on the national spread; Mr. Bob Hollingsworth, Harry's assistant photographer; photographer Harry Dudzik for his perseverance and understanding ways; the English department for cooperating with the survey needed for the special essays; Uncle Dino for his many helpful suggestions for the '76 book; Mrs. Pat Lindemann, American Yearbook, rep. for constantly keeping us on our toes and most important, Mrs. Cynthia Pepelea, adviser, who was the greatest asset in the production of the book. In compiling the book, 24 pt. News Gothic Bold was used for headlines, 10 pt. News Gothic for copy blocks and 8 pt. News Gothic Bold for captions. All kicker heads were set by hand in format type.

Thanks again,

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are undernourished has increased from 600 million to 800 million.

There are a number of reasons for this increase. One of the main reasons is that the world population has increased from 5 billion in 1987 to 6 billion in 1999. This increase in population has led to a corresponding increase in the demand for food. Another reason is that the world's food production has not kept pace with the increase in demand. This is due to a number of factors, including a decline in the number of people working in agriculture, a decline in the amount of land available for agriculture, and a decline in the amount of water available for agriculture.

There are a number of ways in which the world's food production can be increased. One way is to increase the amount of land available for agriculture. This can be done by reforestation and by converting other types of land to agricultural use. Another way is to increase the amount of water available for agriculture. This can be done by building dams and by improving irrigation systems. A third way is to increase the amount of food produced per unit of land. This can be done by using more efficient farming techniques and by using more advanced technologies.

There are a number of challenges that must be overcome in order to increase the world's food production. One of the main challenges is the need to increase the amount of land available for agriculture. This is a difficult task because much of the world's land is already being used for other purposes, such as urban development and industry. Another challenge is the need to increase the amount of water available for agriculture. This is a difficult task because much of the world's water is already being used for other purposes, such as urban development and industry.
